HARVARD
Business Analytics Program

June 24, 2023

Dear Adriant Sanchez,

Congratulations! On behalf of the admissions committee, we are pleased to offer you admission to the Harvard Business Analytics Program for the September 2023 cohort.

The Harvard Business Analytics Program is an online certificate program offered through a collaboration between Harvard Business School (HBS), the John A. Paulson School of Engineering and Applied Sciences (SEAS), and the Faculty of Arts and Sciences (FAS). Faculty members from each of the aforementioned schools have designed entirely new courses that will help you build your capabilities in technical, analytical, and operational areas that can be used to advance your career and your enterprise's position in the global market. Students admitted into this program demonstrate past academic success, leadership capabilities, and experiential knowledge that will contribute to the learning outcomes for all students participating in the program.

This electronic packet contains the following documents:

- Your offer of admission
- Intent to Enroll and Informed Consent forms
- Enrollment Checklist (including instructions for mailing your official transcript(s))

Once you have read through each document, you will need to complete each of the following steps:

- Select the option corresponding to your enrollment decision on the Intent to Enroll form.
- Initial each box on the Informed Consent form to verify your understanding of an agreement with these conditions.

Once you've accepted your offer of admission and have returned both forms electronically, you will be prompted via email to log back into the application system to pay your $500 nonrefundable enrollment deposit.

Please contact your Enrollment Counselor if you have any questions.

Best regards,

Stefan Esposito, PhD
